Maryland Legal Aid: Who We Are

Maryland Legal Aid is a non-profit law firm dedicated to providing high-quality legal advocacy to protect and advance human rights for Maryland's most vulnerable low-income individuals, families and communities.

Know Your Rights!

This brochure is for Maryland residents and contains general information about your rights, but is not meant to be legal advice. Every effort is made to keep this information current. However, the law sometimes changes. If you need information about your specific situation, or if you have a pending legal case, you should seek counsel from Maryland Legal Aid or another legal resource.

What is a Nursing Home Admission Contract?

A person who enters a nursing home is called a resident. A nursing home admission contract is the agreement between a nursing home and a resident. It lists what care and services are to be provided, the basic monthly fee, and all items that cost extra fees. It includes how much has to be paid to hold a bed if the resident has to go to the hospital. Sometimes the document is called an "agreement," a "residency agreement," or a "contract."

Who signs the contract?

If possible, the resident signs the contract. If the resident is unable or not competent to sign the contract, someone else can sign on the resident's behalf. An "agent" is the person who signs a nursing home contract on behalf of a resident.

The nursing home can't require someone else to sign the admission contract if a resident understands the contract and is able to enter into a contract. A resident that has a legal guardian needs the guardian to sign.

Who may be an agent?

Many types of people can act as an agent for a nursing home resident. An agent may be a court-appointed guardian or a person authorized to make health care decisions, such as a health care agent or a next-of-kin.

What are my duties as an agent?

As an agent, you represent the rights of the resident and act on the resident's behalf. You have a duty to do what the resident wishes. If his or her wishes are unknown, you must act in the resident's best interest. The type of agent you are also defines some of your duties. For example, a guardian has special duties assigned by the court. If the resident has appointed a health care agent under an advance directive, the agent should review the resident's advance directive.

What are my financial duties in signing a nursing home contract as an agent?

- If you have the authority to manage, use, or control the resident's funds, you must pay the nursing home out of those funds. If you don't pay, you could be liable for mishandling the resident's funds.
- The nursing home can't require you to pay for the resident's care from your own personal funds.

Before you sign the nursing home admission contract

- You can voluntarily agree to be personally responsible to pay for the resident's care, but you don't have to do so. If you agree, you could be liable for all nursing home expenses even after the resident dies.

What are my responsibilities as a financial agent regarding Long-Term Care Medical Assistance?

- You must seek Long-Term Care Medical Assistance, also called "Medicaid," for the resident if he or she can't afford to pay the nursing home without it.
 - You must gather all the information the resident needs to apply for Medical Assistance. This includes information about the resident's income and assets.
 - You must follow Medical Assistance rules about using the resident's funds. This includes paying most of the resident's monthly income to the nursing home.
 - If you don't apply for Medical Assistance or don't cooperate fully in the application process, a court could order you to do so.
- Before signing the contract, you may want to talk to a trusted advisor. For example, you could talk to the local Long-Term Care Ombudsman or a lawyer who handles elder law.
 - Review the entire contract before you sign it. You have a right to take the contract home to review it in private, or you can ask for a copy of the contract to review before the resident enters the nursing home.
 - The state of Maryland has a model nursing home admission contract. Compare your contract to the State's model nursing home admission contract. Call the Office of Health Care Quality at 410-402-8000 to request a copy of the model contract or you can view the model contract at: <https://health.maryland.gov/ohcq/ltc/docs/Resident%20agreement%202012.pdf>
 - Ask about any part of the contract you find confusing or unfair. If you and the nursing home agree to any changes, make sure you and the nursing home administrator initial the changes in the margin. All changes must be in writing.

Maryland Legal Aid's Statewide Long-Term Care Assistance Project

- Make sure you understand all of your obligations under the contract as the resident's agent.

When you sign the contract

- Make sure the entire contract is complete before you sign it. There should be no blank spaces. If there are choices, make sure it is clear which one applies to the resident.
- Get a complete copy of the signed contract, including any appendices, attachments, or exhibits.

Where can I get help?
